

Wednesday, July 8

2:45-4:00 PM

Thomas Ross.

Thomas Ross has over 15 years of experience with adult learners and over 10 years of professional development and test content experience with K-12 and adult education. Prior to joining GED Testing Service, Mr. Ross spent the last three years working with educators and content specialists on a professional development program in the state of Georgia.

Distance Learning with GEDTS –

As programs across the country remain closed in response to the COVID-19 crisis, putting a temporary halt to in-person instruction, we have put together resources to help you stay connected to your students while continuing to prepare them for the GED test.

During this webinar, Thomas Ross will go over best practices and resources related to distance learning programs. Key topics covered will include:

- Testing realities and challenges in South Dakota
- Fears and concerns of adults during the pandemic
- Online resources that can help students stay engaged and continue learning
- Options to offer distance learning activities for students
- GEDTS resources that can be used in the classroom